To Whom It May Concern:

The student Nicole M. Malavé González, is currently part of my course of Independent Study II (PSIC4992) at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayagüez. Nicole was also part of my course of Independent Study I (PSIC4991) from January to May 2022. The group of students that are part of the course, are constantly learning about important topics related to psychology, while we work with the Deaf child population in Puerto Rico, for a study of needs. I've known Nicole for 10 months, when I interviewed her as a potential student for my investigation course. She enrolled in my course which started in January 2022. Since then, she has positively evolved so much around her peers, that she's currently one of the top of the class.

My experience teaching Nicole has been really great. Nicole is honest, punctual, and responsible as a student and researcher at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayagüez. Her attitude toward my course is remarkable. Nicole is a student with a lot of initiative and is capable to work on her own, as well as to work with others. As part of my courses, Nicole have been taking workshops related to systematic reviews, database search, reference manager software like Mendeley, APA style writing, and more.

Taking in consideration all her qualities as a student and a future professional, I recommend her to be considered for Intellectus Health Research Scholarship. If you have any questions, do not hesitate to contact me at mariely.velez@upr.edu or (787) 806-6691.

Respectfully,
